

ABSTRACT

An immersive time sequential camera uses an array of back-to-back fisheye lenses to capture a  $2\pi$  steradian field of view. A switch mechanism, such as a flip mirror or variable optical attenuator, permits capture of images comprising  $\pi$  steradians on adjacent 5 frames or successive camera exposures.